the Wall" details the experiences of two kids as a street artist paints on their beloved wall in their neighborhood. The narrator describes the frustration that the people of the community have with the artist, who is not only painting over one of their favorite places to play, relax in the shade, and hold on to the memor. Buza is a cracking little bar perched on rocks beneath the city walls. I found it best visited in late afternoon or early evening when its more vibrant. At this time you can watch the divers and theres more bustle about the place. At night its a mecca for the romantics who snuggle up quiet by candlelight and watch the sunsets.
