In Britain, a group called the Management Charter Initiative sought to barrel ahead with the certification of managers, not making the case for management as a profession so much as assuming it. As its director told a newspaper, the MBA "is the only truly global qualification, the only license to trade internationally" (Watts 1997:43). ... Business schools operate on the presumption that management is a science and that an MBA grad is a professional. Management is not a science. A science involves the pursuit of knowledge. Managers do not pursue knowledge. They have a completely different function. If management is not a science, is it a profession? Managers Not MBAs Free Summary by Henry

Mintzberg The minimal effect that an MBA from a lower-ranked school has on earning capacity both short and long term makes it hard to justify the financial and time expense of actually getting the degree ... ... In his book 'Managers, not MBA's', Henry Mintzberg already noted that recruiting various competencies doesn't necessarily make a manager competent. A good manager not only performs well because he is able to recruit various competencies, but also because of the relationship and dynamics between his competencies. Competency Framework, a powerful
