SECTION 7-1 REVIEW GLYCOLYSIS AND FERMENTATION Pages 1 - 4 ... Glycolysis involves nine distinct reactions that convert glucose into pyruvate. In this section, we will cover the first four of these reactions, which convert glucose into glyceraldehyde-3-phosphate. Glucose is a six-membered ring molecule found in the blood and is usually a result of the breakdown of carbohydrates into sugars. ABC Science If the statement is false, change the underlined word or words to make the statement true.

True 1. Glycolysis provides the pyruvic acid molecules used in fermentation. NAD⁺ 2. Fermentation allows glycolysis to continue by providing the NADPH needed to accept high-energy electrons. anaerobic 3. Fermentation is an aerobic process. cytoplasm 4. 9.3 Fermentation - OG Step 1. Two phosphate groups are attached to one molecule of glucose, forming a new six-carbon compound. The phosphate groups are supplied by two molecules of ATP, which are converted into two molecules of ADP in the process. Step 2. The six-carbon compound formed in Step 1 is split into two three-carbon molecules of glyceraldehyde 3 = phosphate
